

Come with us to India and find your creativity with the help of Vedic Art

In March – April 2010, Ayurveda Yoga Villa is arranging for the second time Vedic Art courses in Kerala, in southern India. The teacher is Pirkko Huttunen-Nieminen from Kuopio, Finland. A Vedic Art course was arranged in Kerala for the first time at Easter 2009. During three weeks, it will be possible to take part in the basic and/or continuation courses lasting from one to six days. We are offering different kinds of packages, from which you can choose the one you like best. At the same time, Ayurveda Yoga Villa is offering high-quality ayurveda treatments as well as yoga, meditation and breathing practices in accordance with your own interest. The available accommodation is of high quality; the packages include full board and lodging, teaching, treatments, and transportation to and from the airport.

Exhibition in 2009 during the course

Vedic Art is an easy and natural method to develop one's creativity and to learn to live and cooperate with the laws of nature. Curt Källman, a Swedish artist, has developed 17 principles of arts. When we practise and understand these principles, we find in ourselves the creativity that was given to us as our birth gift. Vedic Art is also art of living. In Källmanin's words, "the brushes in heaven, the feet firmly on the ground." There are neither entry requirements nor age limits to the courses..
